Three ants and a triangle

There are three ants at the three corners of a regular triangle.
Each ant starts moving on a straight line toward another, randomly chosen corner. What is the probability that none of the ants collide?

(from W. Poundstone, How Would You Move Mount Fuji?)